

Camp I-Thonka-Chi is Choctaw for "a place that makes one strong or fearless, not afraid to face life." For the past 16 years, children who have survived the trauma of burn injuries spend one week in an environment of total acceptance just being kids.

The interaction with others who have similar life experiences increases self-esteem through confidence-building activities and an array of camp activities including fishing, canoeing, horseback riding, nature hikes, arts and crafts, cookouts and games. Adult burn survivors join Parkland staff, firefighters and others to serve as volunteer counselors.
